Forecast For Northern Ireland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Tuesday 23 Mar 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Rain spreading from the west later this afternoon.

Today:
Mainly dry and often rather cloudy, some brightness breaking through at times across the north and east. Rain will spread from west later in the afternoon. Breezy this afternoon. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Tonight:
Cloud and rain soon clearing away this evening. Then the rest of the night will see clear periods and the odd light shower, but many places dry. Rather cold. Minimum temperature 3 deg C (37 deg F).

Wednesday:
Sunny intervals and occasional showers, perhaps clouding over with some rain later in the afternoon. Maximum temperature 10 deg C (50 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Bright and breezy on Thursday with showers. Cold and bright with showers on Friday, wintry on hills. Mainly dry on Saturday, a few early showers.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.